

World War 1

My great grandad was a photographer and soldier in World War 1. He took pictures and videos of the brutal war he was in. Sadly he died on the 4th of January 1917. The footage was not destroyed but taken by someone else and he put it on television in the 1940s. He died in a plane crash after been shot down by the ~~Japanese~~^{GERMANS}. He was in 3 other battles before that sorrowing moment. Unfortunately I dont know his name but I do have a picture of him. He was part of the American army. Just like many others he lied to get in. As the intelligent Albert Einstein quoted: "Never ever lie or you may lose your life". And that exactly what happend to my great granddad. He was also french, believe it or not! As for my great granny, she like all the other women she had to make the weapons that the men used in battle. She was making planes and other vehicles like tanks and jeeps. She lived in Boston in America. She died peacefully in 1996. Before the war My great granddad lived in Paris in France with his parents and sisters. Im really proud to be my great granddads great grandson. wouldn't

By: Eoin Mulcahy

Age: 11

School: Scoil na mBuachaillí address: num 1 Inish cuain clonakilly story told by: my granny Ann Killkelly from: clonakilly

you be if your great grandad was fighting for his and Americas nation?