My Great Grandad

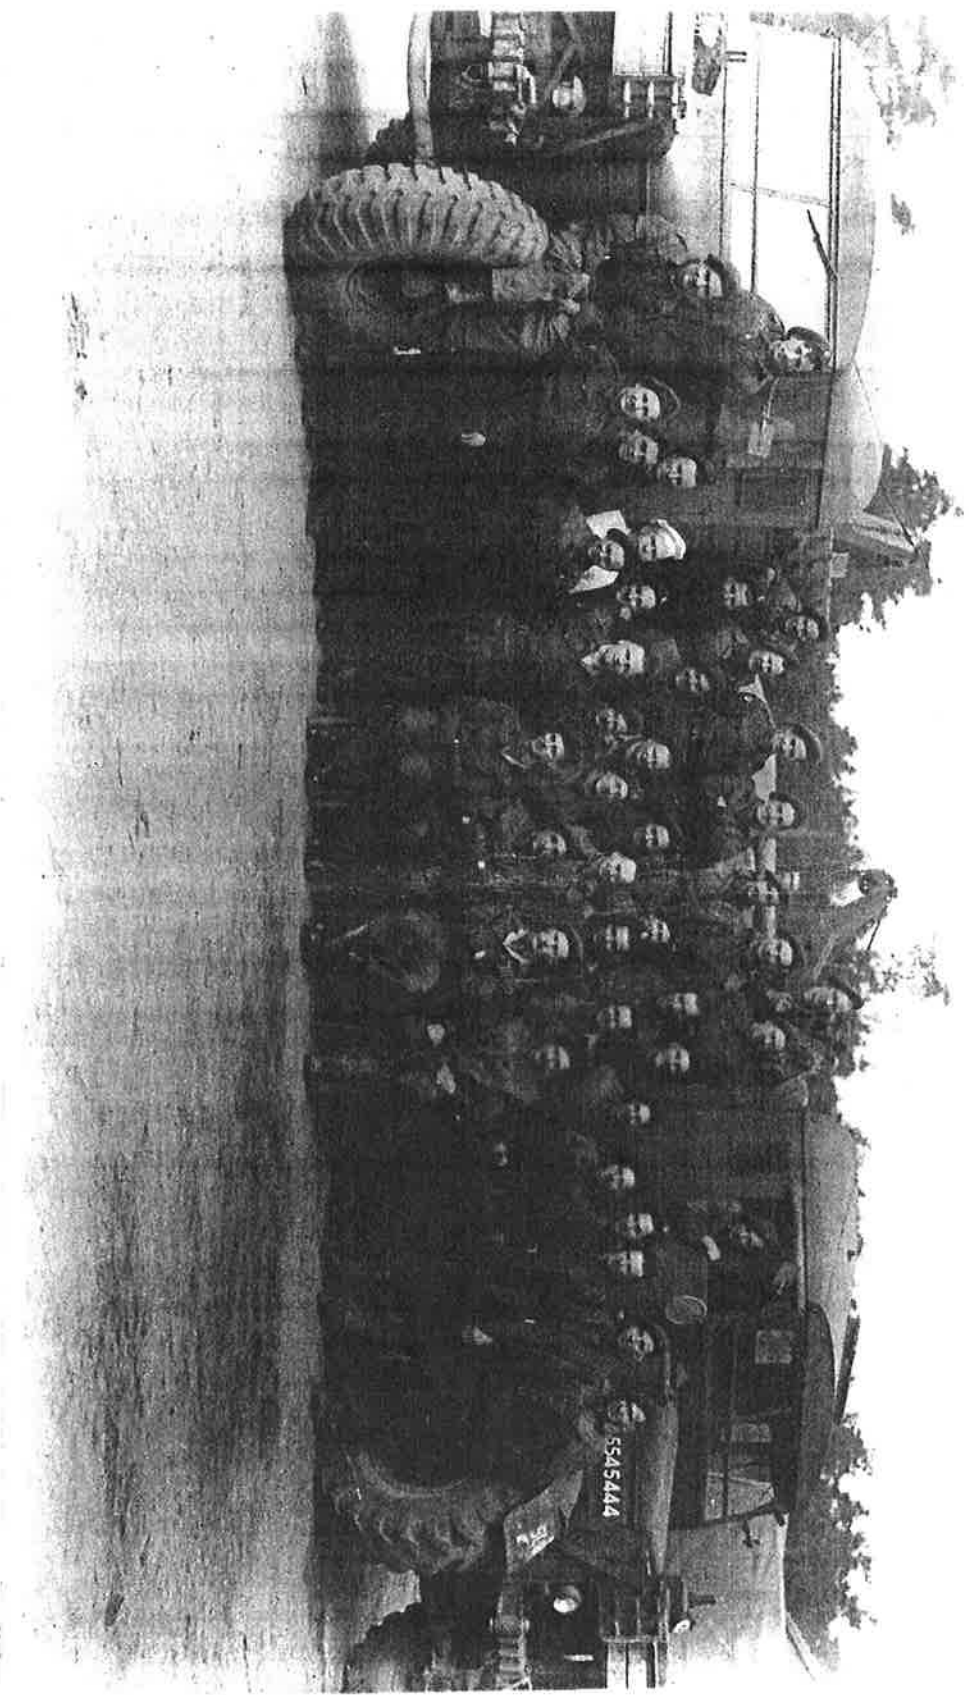

My great grandad was born in 1921. When he was in his twenty's he went to World War II. In World War II his job was to send important messages from people at war. While he was on his motorbike sending a message he got shot above his hip. He was sent to London to recover. He survived the shot and went back to war. He had a new job to do that was to drive important people around the fighting grounds. War was over and there was a street party to celebrate the ending of the war. At that party he met the love of his life Ivy Audrey Lay. They got married and had two lovely girls Tena Long and Val Long. My great grandad died in 1991.

My Great granddad was born in 1921.
When he was in his twenties^{ies} he went to World War II. In World War II his job was to send important messages from people at war.
While he was on his motorbike sending a message he got shot above his hip. He was sent to London to recover. He survived the shoe and went back to war. He had a new job to do and that was to drive important people around the fighting grounds. War was over and there was a street party to celebrate the ending of war. At that ~~party~~ party he met the love of his life My Audrey Long.
They got married and had two lovely girls Tena Long and Val Long. My great granddad died in 1991.

I Leah Culbertson received my story from Val Long

—QUINTIN HOGG

BRITAIN must be politically united to lead the world back to civilisation, said Mr.
Quintin Hogg, Under-Secretary for Air, last night.

And that task, he said, demanded the leadership of Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden, backed by a young and virile Parliament.

Mr. Hogg was speaking at Matlock, West Derbyshire, in support of Flight-Lieutenant William Aitken, Conservative candidate for the general election.

Said Mr. Hogg:—
It is not on party grounds that I mainly claim your support for Mr. Aitken. The situation is too serious for party politics.

PRINCIPLE No. 1

It is vital for future peace that this country should play a united part in international reconstruction.
It can do this only under the leadership of Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden, who have done

By the Admiralty.

Production in Britain of the new weapon, by the Admiralty in conjunction with the Ministry of Supply, was then given high priority and, under reciprocal ad, all details of design were made available to the U.S. Government in the usual way in order that the U.S. Army Air Forces could freely apply these new developments to their immediate operational requirements.

THE heavily laden death-cart of Buchenwald was pictured in Thursday's Daily Express. Here, men are loading one of the death-carts at Belsen's Terror Compound, where thousands of slave prisoners were murdered. . . . A shrunken body is about to join the tragic pile. Still another is being carried on to the roadway. A British soldier stands by to see the work done. And captured S.S. men—the jailers of yesterday—are doing it. German women watch, indifferently. The women guards at Belsen are reported to have used the lash with the brutal fury shown by the S.S. men.

I asked a Scots major what would happen to them. "We shall them over for summary trial," he said.

The women will receive the same treatment. They stand stiff and
