

The

Story

of

Sean

Hurley

Introduction

My name is Lisa Buckley.

I am 10 years old

I am in fourth class

I go to Drumore N.S

I live in Drumoursneen.

I am doing this project
on: Sean Hurley

This is the information I have method →

The story

Sean Hurley was the only Cork volunteer killed in Dublin Easter week in 1916.

Sean was born in July 1887. He was the youngest of seven children Daniel, William,

Ellen, Patrick, Catharine and

Mary.

He attended Drinagh National School and later went to take his Clerical / Post Office exam, which was organised by John Crowley at the Clonakilty boys school. Amongst his classmates were Michael Collins, Woodfield and Con o Donovan, the pike o Clonakilty. All three

He joined the Geraldine GAA club and was noted as a fine athlete. Amongst his team mates were John and Frank Shouldice and Michael Collins. Sean was introduced to Sam Maguire and joined the London branch of the IRB. He was a member of the Fulham Branch of the Men were to fight in Dublin

Easter Week. Sean immigrated to London in 1906 after he successfully passed his course in Clonakilty. He secured employment in Harrods store as an accounts clerk. In 1911,

Sean was lodging in the Camden hill Kensington area.

Gaelic League. Where he took

Irish Language classes. He along with many of his team mates also joined the newly formed

London Branch of the Irish

Volunteers. Sean returned to Dublin in January 1916 and was employed at Wilson and Crowe, Bootmakers, lower bridge

The Drumoleague
Flag

Street, Dublin. Sean Hurley

Was garrisoned on Church

Street, during Easter Week and was fatally wounded on April 29th, 1916. He was brought to the Medical Station, St. Mathew's

Hall, Church Street, which was run by the Capuchin Order,

Fr Augustine Hayden, anointed Sean

When he was brought into the Medical Hall. After the surrender and the fighting stopped. Sean was transferred to Richmond Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

He was buried along with 15 others in St. Pauls Section,

Republican plot Glasnevin Cemetery,
Dublin.