

TIMOTHY

WHOOLEYS

ACCIDENTAL

DEATH

This story is about Timothy Whooley's Accidental Death. Timothy Whooley lived in Derrymeleen, Ballineen in Co. Cork. He was born on to a farm of thirty acres. He lived with his father named John and his mother Julia. He had five other siblings called Michael, Mary, Julia, Thomas and John. He worked as a grocer in Clonakilty Co. Cork. He was the youngest of the family.

A memorial of Timothy Whooley's
Death

Timothy Whooley's Accidental Death

Timothy Whooley, a member of the second or Clonakilty Battalion of the West Cork Brigade was on duty at Shannon Vale cross on the Bandon road. He was armed with a Peter the

Painter (a type of gun), which he placed on the ground. The gun

was picked up

by one of his colleagues, who knew

little of the

intricacies of the gun and before

anyone could

realise what was happening, Timothy

Whooley was shot

through the head and

HOPE YOU ENJOYED

